3. Individual Information

What is your area of study?

Briefly explain your interests in sustainable development.

What do you feel that you can offer to the WSCSD?

Participation in the WSCSD requires a commitment to communication. Because we are an international organization, the majority of our communication is via the internet. Do you have easy access to e-mail?

If, in the future, you would be interested in starting a student community at your university, do you have any faculty who would be interested in being your advisor?

What are your current activities and/or research projects related to sustainable Development?

4. Sustainability Group Information

Do you have any contacts from any WSCSD Student Communities in your region?

If YES, how many students are currently involved in this/these group/s? :

If answered NO to question 1, the WSCSD will provide you with some suggested WSCSD Student Communities in your region. We feel it is important, but not necessary, for individual members to work with other previously established WSCSD Student Communities. In some cases, there may not be any student community in your region.
